Freddie Mac Foundation's
Wednesday's Child

Amber is a young lady with a great sense of style and a charm to go with it. She was born in 1994 and says that she likes to “pamper” herself. Amber enjoys shopping for shoes, perfume and jewelry as well as going out to eat sushi with her friends.

So what venue would be fitting for such a sophisticated teenager? Thanks to our long time WC partner, Melanie Segal, Amber was treated to some “celebrity-style” pampering along the red carpet and in the gifting suites of the Teen Choice Awards.

Amber fit right in and drew the crowd's attention with her own sense of individuality and charisma. While many of our teens deserve some routine pampering, it was nice to learn that Amber also likes to give back and that she volunteers at a local homeless shelter.

When she's not volunteering Amber is very much focused on her studies and, at age 16, she's already a high school senior. Amber hopes to be a physician when she grows up – specifically an OB/GYN.

Charm and brains doesn't completely define Amber though, as she is also an active young lady. Some of her favorite activities include riding bikes, going to the gym and playing basketball.

Amber has some quieter pursuits as well – such as watching movies and reading – and says that her favorite reading materials are “urban fiction” series. Amber is a very straightforward person who is able to express herself well.

As our “celebrity for the day”, Amber was moved to join in and lend her hand to a cause. Here she shows support to the efforts of celebrities like Randy Jackson who had signed back-to-school-shopping-bags to be auctioned off to raise money for homeless children.

Amber has some specific goals for her future, but her current pressing goal is to be part of a permanent family as she strives for her future goals. While Amber has style, charm and smarts going for her, we all need support and guidance as we face life's endeavors.
