This week's Wednesday's child is James, an athletic youth who enjoys a variety of sports such as football, basketball, swimming, skateboarding, surfing, and weightlifting. While he isn't keen on watching television, he does enjoy going to the movies -- especially to see horror movies or comedies. And when it comes to trying something new, James is game. With that in mind, we met James at MB2 Raceway in Sylmar, California for time behind the wheel.

Born in 1996, James is not yet ready for a CA driver's license -- but like many kids his age he's eager to get behind the wheel of any vehicle permissible at his age. Quickly learning about safety checks, operation controls, and the course he would be driving on, James donned on safety gear and was on his way.

James is a smart young man and, like many teens, when he's focused he can really accelerate along a chosen path. But we also found James to be a polite and articulate young man when expressing his feelings.

As we watched James incorporate the guidance he was given with his natural eye-hand coordination and confidence, we realized that we all need guidance from outside sources in order to stay on track. Today James was zooming along the track in pursuit of the checkered flag; but along life's highway James is seeking a forever family to provide him the support and guidance that, combined with his inner strengths, will help him go far in life.

Like many kids in foster care, James has had a difficult past and grapples with the many uncertainties of the road ahead. We're hoping that there's a family out there that will waive that checkered flag to signal to James that he's approaching a checkpoint in life's race where he can gain a stable crew to cheer him on and keep him on track.
