Freddie Mac Foundation's
Wednesday's Child

Meet Josue, Ulises and Isack -- a fun loving trio that need one forever family. We took these three to Chuck E. Cheese in Pico Rivera, California to get to know them a little better.

Born in 1998, Josue is a friendly, talkative and outgoing 11 year old boy. He is bilingual in English and Spanish. As a big brother, he is very affectionate, caring and protective of his younger brothers and usually keeps a smile on his face. Josue likes dancing, drawing and baseball and recently enrolled in a football league. Josue would like to be a pro football player when he grows up but is also interested in becoming a lawyer (we all need a back-up plan, right?)

Next up is Ulises. Born in 2002, he is both charming and active. He enjoys talking about his experiences at school and, like his older brother, is bilingual in English and Spanish. He does well in school and his favorite subject is math. At school he likes to play bingo and hide and seek with his friends. Ulises also likes to dance and draw as well as playing video games and playing soccer. What he likes best about big brother is that Josue sometimes lets him win at games. Ulises is affectionate and caring and says he might want to become a doctor someday to take care of people.

Baby brother Isack was born in 2005 and currently attends pre-school. Isack is a happy, friendly and affectionate child who is usually smiling and laughing -- secure in the knowledge that he has big brothers looking after him. Isack likes to give hugs and kisses and likes to sing songs in Spanish. What does Isack love about his big brothers? When they play with him at places like, well ... Chuck E. Cheese! And what does Isack want to be when he grows up??? Let's just say for now he's content just being cute and adorable.

These brothers have a special bond. We're looking for a family who will take in all three and provide a safe and nurturing family environment where these kids can, at least for now, just be kids.
