Freddie Mac Foundation's
Wednesday's Child

While it's the end of summer and back to school time, this week's Wednesday's Child had one more dream for us to field this season – a trip to Angel Stadium! As evidenced by his outfit, Raymond (1998) is a true Angels fan and was all geared up for the pre-arranged meeting with Angels' catcher Bobby Wilson. To Raymond's pleasant surprise, he also ended up meeting the whole team and sharing in the player refreshments while hanging out in the dugout.

Raymond is a young teenager with a warm smile and an engaging personality to match. He loves the outdoors – particularly the ocean – and got to spend part of his summer at a surfing camp. Raymond does very well in school and has an easy going, responsive and calm demeanor.

Raymond doesn't quite know what it is that he wants to do when he grows up but he's got some time to figure it out. For now, what he needs most is to be called up to the "field of permanency" by an adoptive family that's ready to provide Raymond some coaching and help him safely get into scoring position for future life endeavors.

Take time-out and tune in this Wednesday and Sunday to catch Raymond at Angel Stadium. If you find that the story steals a piece of your heart and mind, make a line-drive call to the number below for more information about Raymond and adoption.
