Like a school of fish, this week's Wednesday's Child children -- Warren, Darius, Cierra and Taylor -- like to keep close to one another. While they spent the day together with us at the Aquarium of the Pacific in Long Beach, California, unfortunately these four siblings are currently living in two separate homes. We are seeking to find a family that has enough room in their home and hearts to raise these four under one roof and be their forever family.

Warren was born in 1996 and is the big brother of the group. Like most typical teens he likes basketball, football, soccer....anything that is active and fun. He also enjoys eating gumbo and crab legs, and loves to watch both scary and funny movies. Warren is good at playing the big brother role, looking after his siblings whenever they are together and is often especially protective of little brother Taylor.

Darius, born in 1997, is number two of this sibling set and follows in his big brother's footsteps in that he, too, is athletic and enjoys most sports, including basketball, football, soccer, and swimming. He likes to play video-games with his brother, and enjoys a good plate of Mexican food. Whatever big brother is doing, Darius is likely to want to join in and mimic.

Cierra was born in 2003 and is the only girl of this group. Even as such, Cierra enjoys doing what the boys do and has even played on a football team. Cierra is very affectionate and loves attention. She is a great helper and will often ask to help fold clothes, cook dinner, and do laundry. Cierra is also quite inquisitive and was intrigued by all that she saw during the up-close meetings with some of the exotic animals at the Aquarium.

Taylor was born in 2006 and is like most kids his age in that he loves to play outside and to be read to -- and yes, he's into Elmo! Taylor has delayed speech and is currently being evaluated to see what services will benefit him the most. Taylor needs a patient parent or two who will work with him and help this little tyke to overcome the challenges he is currently facing.

While their day together at the Aquarium looking at the sea creatures is over, we continue seeking that special and loving family that will welcome all four kids into their hearts and home. And they're looking to be together as part of a forever family today and everyday!
